

Coffee & Compliance

Your weekly briefing on workplace safety, compliance, HR trends, and smarter training.

Good morning. ☕

Your coffee's ready. See what's brewing.

Hiring is taking longer and more roles are closing unfilled. The compliance landscape around disparate impact just got a lot grayer. And contractor safety has a blind spot most organizations haven't examined closely enough. This week also brings a timely reminder that emergency action plans need practice, not just paper. Pour a cup. Let's get into it.

WHAT'S BREWING

HR TRENDS

Hiring Is Taking Longer Than Ever

43% of hiring managers say it takes longer to fill roles than two years ago, with 21% of positions closing unfilled. Candidates are frustrated by automated processes and ghost listings. Clear, timely communication is now a competitive hiring advantage.

SAFETY ALERT

Contractor Safety Has a Blind Spot

The National Safety Council launched a survey on how organizations manage serious injury and fatality risk among contractors. It covers SIF definitions, reporting expectations, prequalification practices, and critical control verification. Takes ten minutes and helps shape industry best practices.

COMPLIANCE UPDATE

HR Is Caught in a Compliance Gray Area

The DOJ and EEOC are pulling back on disparate impact enforcement but the underlying law hasn't changed. Experts warn HR teams not to drop validation studies or adverse impact analysis, especially as AI hiring tools scale decisions faster than compliance can keep up.
